

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

A Little Land and a Living. By BOLTON HALL. New York: The Arcadia Press, 1908. 8vo, pp. 286.

In this work, the author of Three Acres and Liberty does still more to stir up the enthusiasm of the city man for country life. His point that life is not merely making a living cannot be emphasized too strongly; but the living must be made, and a number of practical suggestions as to how the city man can make a living in the country are found in this book.

---

History of German Immigration in the United States and Successful German-Americans and Their Descendants. By GEO. VON SKAL. New York: F. T. and J. C. Smiley, 1908. 8vo, pp. 277.

This volume is in fact simply a collection of brief biographies, including portraits, of the most successful men of German birth and descent in this country. The section devoted to the history of German immigration is brief and poorly done. The technical make-up of the volume is distinctly good.

---

The Early History of the Levant Company. By M. EPSTEIN. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co., 1908. 8vo, pp. x+270.

A careful study based primarily upon the original sources and making a distinct contribution to our knowledge of the early history of this company. It covers the years of periodic charters from 1581 to 1605 and the period of the permanent charter down to 1640. The Appendix, which makes up nearly one-half of the volume, contains early charters, lists of officers, ships, ports, etc.

---

Race or Mongrel. By A. P. SCHULTZ. Boston: L. C. Page & Co., 1908. 8vo, pp. 369.

A negligible book which advocates with hysterical fanaticism and without scholarship the familiar view of the extreme anthropologists that racial impurity is the source of all evil. The apparent object is to check alien immigration into the United States.

---

The Principles of Practical Publicity. By TRUMAN A. DEWEESE. 2d ed. Philadelphia: George W. Jacobs & Co., 1908. 8vo, pp. xvi+250.

The second edition of this work, which deals with the more technical side of advertising, is put out by a different publisher. The arrangement of the chapters has been slightly altered and some new material added, but otherwise it remains substantially the same.

---

The Modern Corporation. By THOMAS CONYNGTON. 3d ed. New York: The Ronald Press, 1908. 8vo, pp. 290.

That there is a demand for something even more condensed than the author's two volumes on Corporate Organization and Corporate Management is evident from the appearance of a new edition of this work which practically combined the gist of those two. The changes in it, as compared with the previous edition, are scarcely noticeable.